The claim made by the management of the 2d Annual New England Food Fair and House Furnishing Exposition which opens at Mechanics Building, Boston, Oct. 5 and continues to the 31st, that $100,000 will be spent for free attractions can easily be believed when one considers the list of free features already announced.

A Great Pianist at Barton.

Through an unusual streak of good fortune the musicians of northeastern Vermont have an opportunity to listen to one of the world's greatest planists, Friday night. Miss Adela Verne was born of Bayarian parents in England, where her father was a well known professor of music. The youthful Adela showed marked talent when an infant, and at the age of four played a Bach Fugue, the "Merry Peasant" of Schumann, and other pieces, with the utmost facility. When she was six, Mmc. Schumann, that noted teacher, heard her play, and at the age of 14 Paderewski heard her play, and both declared her wonderful. Paderewski desired her for a pupil and prophesied a great career for her. She has toured the British Isles fornia last spring, where she received the highest praise of the musicians of that state, and the musical magazines gave much space to her. Her manager then sought a vacation place for her, before making her real first American tour this He, being a tormer resident of his locality, decided upon Glover, where they have been this summer. Next month she begins her tour before audiences in New York, Poston, and other musical centers, but before going has confescended to play at Barton, and Friday night of this week is the date. She played last Friday night at Glover and these two are the only public recitals she will give before leaving this section. The program at Glover consisted of works by Rubenstein, Chopin, Alkan and Mendelssohn. The program Friday night at Barton will be equal to this and anyone who misses the opportunity to hear her then will not have another chance outside the large cities. The musicians who listened to her at Glover pronounce her a marvel. She is undoubtedly one of the world's greatest pianists and America will be wild over her before another spring. See advertisement on another page.
